Skin Health Matters: Protect the Skin You're In

Skin does more than cover your body. It protects us from germs and acts as a barrier against the environment.

We are often thoughtful about protecting a young child's skin from the sun by using sunscreen and finding shade. As adults, it's easy to let some of those habits slip. Your skin is constantly exposed to sun, wind, and other elements that can cause damage. Wearing sunscreen, drinking plenty of water, eating healthy foods, and caring for your skin can help you enjoy your time outdoors while protecting yourself.

Unpacking UV rays

Even on cloudy days, up to 80% of the sun's harmful ultraviolet (UV) rays can reach your skin. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), most skin cancers develop after too much exposure to UV rays. There are two types of rays that can damage skin.

- UVB rays affect the top layer of skin and are the main cause of sunburn.
- UVA rays go deeper into the skin and cause aging and long-term damage.

Take simple steps to protect yourself, including learning how to use sunscreen properly and applying it consistently.

Skin cancer on the rise

According to the American Academy of Dermatology,* one in five Americans will develop skin cancer in their lifetime. The most serious type of skin cancer, melanoma, can spread if not caught early. Learn how to recognize the signs of melanoma and what it looks like at melanoma.org. Early detection and screenings can protect your life and the lives of your loved ones.

How can you screen for skin cancer?

A yearly professional skin exam is recommended beginning in your 20s or 30s, or earlier if you have a family history of skin cancer. Watch for changes in size, color, or shape of moles, and sores that don't heal. If you notice anything unusual, schedule an appointment with your primary care provider (PCP) or a dermatologist.

People of color are more likely to get melanoma in areas that rarely see the sun, such as the palms, soles, and under the nails.

Protecting your skin is an important part of staying healthy. By taking basic screening steps and learning about sun protection, you can enjoy the outdoors while lowering your risk of melanoma.

Sun Safety Tips:

- Check the UV index. You can use a weather app to check the UV index in your area to see how strong the sun is.
- Apply sunscreen. Make sure to apply a broad-spectrum sunscreen that is SPF 30 or higher. Don't forget to protect your lips with SPF balm.
- Dress smart. Wear caps or wide-brimmed hats, sunglasses, and long sleeves when possible.
- Hang out in the shade. Be more cautious between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. when UV rays tend to be higher.
- Beware of reflective rays. Bodies of water and sand can reflect damaging rays that can cause sunburn.
- Avoid tanning beds. Tanning beds expose your skin to harmful UV rays. For a quick glow, try a self-tanning lotion instead.

Behavioral Health vs. Mental Health

You may hear the terms mental health and behavioral health used in the same way. While they are closely connected, they are not exactly the same. Knowing the difference can help you understand what kind of support may be helpful.

Mental health is about how you think and feel. It can affect your mood, emotions, and relationships. Everyone has good days and bad days, but some people face ongoing challenges like anxiety, depression, bipolar disorder, or post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). For many people dealing with these issues, therapy, counseling, or medicine may help them feel better.

Behavioral health looks at how habits and actions affect overall health. It includes mental health, along with things like substance use, sleep problems, eating disorders, and ongoing stress. In many cases, these challenges can be improved with healthier habits and coping skills.

Overall, many people find that a mix of both mental and behavioral health support can be helpful. EmblemHealth is here to help. Get support by calling our confidential, dedicated Mental Health Concierge line at 646-447-9417 (TTY: 711) from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. We will schedule an appointment with a local mental health professional within five business days.

Hydrate for Your Health

Did you know that our bodies are made up of about 60% water*? And we are constantly losing those fluids through breathing, sweating, and even eating. As summer temperatures rise, remember the crucial role hydration plays in your overall health.

Hydration helps regulate your body temperature, transport nutrients and oxygen throughout your body, lubricate joints, and keep your organs functioning. Knowing the signs of dehydration can help you avoid serious health complications like heat exhaustion or seizures. Without proper hydration you may experience thirst, low energy levels, headaches or trouble concentrating, muscle cramps, or dark yellow urine. By the time you're thirsty, your body may already be slightly dehydrated.

Getting enough water is particularly important during warmer months when you are losing more water due to sweat. While there is no one-size-fits-all approach to how much water you need, following some simple tips will help keep your body functioning properly.

Tips to help stay hydrated:

- Carry a refillable water bottle.
- Drink water before, during, and after exercise.
- Add fruit like lemon, berries, or cucumber for flavor.
- Eat water-rich foods like watermelon, oranges, and cucumbers.
- Set reminders to drink water during the day.

Staying hydrated is a simple habit that supports energy, digestion, and overall well-being.

Food Assistance This Summer, and Year Round

Food security is an ongoing challenge for many individuals and families, and it can become even more difficult during the summer months when household expenses rise and resources feel stretched.

Reliable access to nutritious food is essential to maintaining physical health, managing chronic conditions, and supporting overall well-being year-round.

To help address these needs, EmblemHealth offers resources that connect members and communities with food security programs that support people at every stage of life. Some programs include the delivery of medically tailored meals to members who are dealing with short-term or chronic health conditions.

Through partnerships with local organizations, EmblemHealth Neighborhood Care locations host food giveaways, healthy cooking programs, and offer in-person nutrition support. These resources help people find free, or affordable, healthy food options and assistance programs in their neighborhoods. Whether someone is experiencing a short-term setback or long-term food insecurity, access to the right support can make a meaningful difference.

Supporting Your Child's Health With Regular Medical and Dental Checkups

Well-child visits and routine dental care are essential to keep your child healthy and strong. These regular checkups help doctors and dentists monitor development, prevent problems, and catch potential concerns early.

Most children should see the doctor once a year, while babies and younger children typically need more frequent visits. During well-child visits, your child's doctor tracks growth and development, checks vision and hearing, provides recommended vaccines, and screens for early signs of health issues. These appointments are also a great chance to talk about topics such as nutrition, sleep, learning, and behavior.

Dental care is just as important. Children should visit the dentist twice a year for regular exams, cleanings, and x-rays when recommended. For families enrolled in Medicaid or Child Health Plus, dental care is covered at no cost through DentaQuest which gives your family access to dental care from more than 3,600 dentists at 20,000 locations near you.

If your child is due for a medical or dental visit, you can find a doctor by visiting emblemhealth.com/find-a-doctor or by calling the number on your member ID card. Keeping up with regular appointments helps to build a trusted relationship and supports healthy habits for years to come.

Women: Take a Little Time for Your Health

Women are multi-taskers. Managing appointments for the family and caregiving often means pushing caring for yourself to the back burner. Take time for yourself! Book your annual preventive care visits with your primary care provider (PCP) and OB/GYN to establish a health history with them before an illness or condition starts. Next, schedule pap smears, mammograms, lab work, and vaccinations to stay healthy.

Pregnancy support resources

Pomelo Care: This spring, EmblemHealth launched a partnership with Pomelo Care.* Their health care professionals offer virtual care for moms and infants from pregnancy to postpartum. Their app offers 24/7 care via text and in-app messaging, video visits, and calls (with the aim to coordinate with your in-person care team) – at no additional cost.

Pomelo can provide:

- Nutrition counseling.
- Perinatal and postpartum mental health support.
- Lactation and breastfeeding support.
- Care and education for NICU families.

Members can enroll with Pomelo by emailing referrals@pomelocare.com or calling 914-919-9200 (TTY: 711), 24/7. Scheduled visits are available between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. every day and urgent visits are available outside those hours.

*Pomelo Care does not replace any in-person visits or care from your health care provider.

Doula program

EmblemHealth is committed to helping pregnant members and new parents. If you are pregnant or were pregnant within the last 12 months, your plan covers up to eight visits with a doula.† They provide support for pregnant and postpartum members. Doulas can help:

- Create a birth plan and offer ongoing support during pregnancy and labor.
- Provide valuable information on pregnancy, childbirth, and early parenting.

- Communicate with your doctors.
- Connect you with community-based resources for childbirth and parenting.

You are eligible for new services with each pregnancy. Learn more and find a provider today at emblemhealth.com/doula.

*This benefit is open to Medicaid and HARP members.

Menopause support with Elektra

Beginning July 1, 2026, EmblemHealth Medicaid/HARP members have new tools and resources for menopause.

EmblemHealth has partnered with Elektra Health to provide our members with expert care, education, and support during menopause. Menopause can last from eight to 10 years, and there can be a lack of education for women and doctors. Elektra provides members with:

- Virtual visits and follow-ups with a board-certified menopause health care professional.
- Free menopause information from Elektra's education and community platform.
- A personalized care plan with labs and prescriptions, if needed.

Book a visit online at elektrahealth.com/lp/emblem or by emailing Elektra at care@elektrahealth.com.

You can learn more about our women's health programs by visiting emblemhealth.com/WomensHealth.

Health Matters is published by EmblemHealth to inform members of current health issues and improve the use of services. This publication should not replace the care and advice of your doctor.
